CALLING ALL ARTISTS!

The Museum of History and Holocaust Education is seeking illustrators for a traveling exhibit slated to open in September. The exhibit, entitled Words, Music, Memory: Representing Voices from the Holocaust, will consist of ten panels, including eight featuring individual authors who experienced the Holocaust. Each author panel will include an excerpt from the author’s writing along with an illustration of the author in the form of an interpretive portrait.

Artists will be paid $200/panel and must create concept sketches by June 1 and final works by June 25. One or more artists will be selected for this project.

Interested artists should send a resume, digital art samples, and two references, to Adina Langer, MHHE curator, at alanger@kennesaw.edu, by April 15, 2021. They should also indicate the maximum number of illustrations they would be interested in producing.
